Recirculation Compared to a Sponge

The following is a simple explanation of the oversoul and the process of recirculation (reincarnation). Visualize the oversoul as a sponge filled with water. This water represents humanity between incarnations on the inner planes. When a spark goes to the inner planes, he does not enter at the bottom of the sponge, he enters at the top and works his way down. Eventually the sponge reaches its saturation point and the excess drips off the bottom. These are the sparks that reincarnate on the earth plane.

This process could be compared to souls separating from the oversoul and recirculating. Energy waves, which are the action of God, act as a pump that lift these sparks to the top of the oversoul (sponge) when they leave the earth plane at the end of each incarnation.

This sponge should be pictured as having twelve levels which are the reverse of the twelve levels of the earth plane. It is as though looking in a mirror, a reflection. Level number one of the oversoul is at the top, level number one on the earth plane is at the bottom with both level twelves in the center. You work your way down through the twelve layers of the oversoul and up through the twelve layers of the earth plane.

The oversoul, or Creator God, must also be pictured as moving very, very slowly through His own twelve planets. He also recirculates, and as He reaches planet twelve He starts His trip over. He is approaching the start of His fourth trip through this, our own solar system, which will be the unfolding of the fourth dimension on the earth plane. His first three trips were also on the earth plane. All things happen on the earth plane at the same time as they take place on the Oversoul's planets.

The recirculation continues forever and ever, and ever and ever. It never ends. There are always higher and better worlds to attain, and each world itself is progressing at all times. Humanity needs to understand that they will never be destroyed. Therefore, they may as well settle down and start working on their attitudes, their spiritual concepts and the raising of their consciousness.

Michael, the Creator God, began to go over in His mind the different stages of progress that He wanted to see His children make. By this time He realized that eventually He was going to need to have another little world for them to progress to. He started to plan it and took into consideration what was going on down there in that world with all those different ray types pulling apart constantly. He realized that when they finally left planet earth after reaching the stage in evolution that He, as Creator God, had set for them, that they would need to be brought back together. After all, they had started out as one and were shattered apart. No wonder they were lost and unhappy and fighting amongst themselves. What a shock to all, to be shattered into all those little sparks. No wonder they felt so alone, and they really and truly did need to help each other. But then, after all, He made that world as an experiment to be experienced in that way.

When they progress onward to the next stage of the path that He and His brothers laid out, they're going to need to have a period of healing before being shattered apart again for more lessons. After realizing that more worlds would be needed eventually, Michael and His brothers decide that they can cooperate and make a progressive path with the other worlds as advanced stages of that path.

Knowing that this group of His was going to need to have at least one or two more worlds on which to be refined before they would be ready for the more advanced worlds of His brothers, Michael continued His work by creating the fifth world where they could recover and heal from the shock of life on the fourth planet. Even though they went through two stages or levels of life on the earth plane, they are nowhere near the level needed to join His brothers' worlds. The first stage of planet earth was third dimensional - being in manifestation (taking on a human form) - and the second was fourth dimensional, which is the unmanifested stage.

Even after the healing on the fifth world where the broken sparks are reunited, He felt they still need to have another experience in being separated, but this time as whole sparks again, not split into male and female halves. When they finish this experience they will finally be able to join those already on the seventh world. This seventh world is where the original help came from when Michael realized He needed to refine the early forms so the sparks could enter them. Some of those who originally helped Him are still on the seventh plane helping the newly arrived to adjust. Eventually they will move on. All keep moving along the path Michael and your brothers laid out.

Remember, Michael created Himself from air that turned into rings of atoms that eventually started fighting and became storms and lightning. That lightning was His frustration of not being satisfied with what He thought was all of life. Look at the door that frustration opened for Him. If He had never gotten frustrated enough to form lightning bolts that smashed into earth and shattered Himself, He would never have experienced all the different kingdoms inside Himself that He has so far experienced. There are more kingdoms yet to experience. Because we are Him, we will always have more kingdoms ahead of us. As we keep expanding outward in our kingdoms, we will eventually return to our beginning and start all over again.

The Spiritual Path Compared to a Stairway

The teachers and guides that one reaches when meditating can be compared to climbing a stairway. These stairs are not flat steps; they must be pictured as the rings of energy spoken of previously. As you climb, each ring, or step, is turning you in a different direction. If people can relate better when putting a name on each circle, each step of the stairway, then let them. They really and truly are bands of energy arising from the earth plane that can be tapped into.

The overall pathway, or stairway if you will, can be related in your mind to what you have always heard of as the Holy Spirit. Another term would be divine mind. As this stairway progresses higher and higher, we can relate this to music, because each ring of energy, reflects up an octave. Perhaps a guitar would be a good illustration. As it jumps it's octave, it forms a harmonic, and reflects an octave higher. This is precisely what happens when you advance on these rings of energy.

These rings of energy can be related to the religious teachers and others throughout the Bible. In the very beginning of earth there was no Holy Spirit to speak of above the earth plane. It had to be built. As these first entities passed on from the earth plane, their spirits ascended, and the next plane was built in this manner. The higher planes being discussed are the emotional, mental and spiritual levels and above. Each level is one of those harmonics, one of those octave higher jumps in progression, referred to in the previous paragraph. But remember, it is this beam of Holy Spirit, a circular stairway that you are ascending.

The rings of energy, pictured as stairs, have labels attached to them with the names of religious leaders and outstanding men and women throughout history. Everyone has the power to tap into the rings of energy, this stream of knowledge. When they do, they tap into the lowest level first and must work very hard to get up any higher. But they must continue working, they can't just stop. The same words are up here for anyone to reach if their vibration is high enough. This source can be tapped into in times of stress or crisis.

As you climb these stairs, there are fewer and fewer on these steps, which means there are fewer and fewer past experiences to tap into. Only the good experiences are stored under the ethereal name on the akashic records and this is what you are tapping into.

As you move up in this beam of light, this Holy Spirit, this energy field, you go backwards on the family tree. The line of communication will go higher and be lighter and smaller and dimmer, and you will eventually reach the very first humans. The further back you go, the closer the energy gets to the truths of the divine bind. As it gets closer, it gets purer; it is not as contaminated and muddied with error.

Your Spiritual Journey Compared To A Mouse

Picture a mouse running on the shore of a lake. He eats, sleeps and dies on the bank of this lake. His body disintegrates, but the part of the mouse that lived on could now rise beyond what he could see and know in his environment of the area around the lake (planet earth). Now he had traveled at times all around the lake, had even ridden across the lake on a log from side to side and end to end. There was even a tree that extended way out over the narrow part of the lake and met a tree from the other side and he crossed the lake on this tree high above the water. But he could not climb the sheer rock cliffs that surrounded the lake and had no idea what the surrounding territory looked like. He didn't know if there were more lakes or not. He had lived numerous lives (reincarnations on earth) always in the area around his lake.

But this time when he dies he (his spirit) does not merely hover over this lake waiting for a chance to reenter the body of a baby mouse (reincarnate on earth). His spirit continues to rise. It is so light and free it rises above the sheer rock cliffs and he finally can see the surrounding territory. IT IS A FANTASTIC SIGHT! There are more lakes, similar but somehow much more beautiful, and none of them have the sheer rock cliffs around them that had held him prisoner in one area for so long. Now that he can see and know how much more there really is, he is no longer as interested in his old lake (planet earth).

In between lives on the old lake when hovering above waiting (on the astral planes), he used his widened vision to mentally tell his brothers and sisters of food supplies at one end of the lake or other or tell them of a branch that wasn't safe that he could see and they could not. Maybe he spotted a big cat lurking inside a cave and warned them. He did what he could, always, to help those below with his expanded knowledge if they would listen (channeling). But now that he sees the immensity of the rest of the territory, he now wanted to tell those down there, in that little lake at the base of the sheer rock cliffs, what he could see and what lay ahead of them all, and urge them to be better mice so they could rise up to that area where he was and see what he could see. He no longer wanted to warn them of cats and broken limbs, although he would if they asked.

What he really wanted to do was move on out into that huge territory and experience all the other lakes (higher planets). But it was hard leaving his family. He had been with them for so long and would miss them, but oh, how exciting these new places looked and how beautiful! If only he could somehow stay in touch with his family.

Then he was met by a wise old mouse who told him he could stay in touch by making contact with one special mouse (a chela or student) down on the old lake and telling him his plans and asking him to communicate his experiences to the rest of the mice. He waited at the top of the sheer rock cliff until his contact with one special mouse was secure and now he is moving on.

You see, in order to secure that contact, he had to leave a small part of his energy in that special mouse's body, so he is part of the special mouse and will always be. Some other mice receive a small part of energy from others, but this is not very common. Most other mice that can communicate are working from the area above the lake (astral planes). He has moved on, therefore his special mouse has also moved on. What he sees and experiences in the rest of that huge territory (outer space) will be seen and experienced by his special mouse also and hopefully will help all those mice imprisoned on the first lake we spoke about.

He does know most of how the help was given to those mice on that first lake who had merely been water skippers before (animal/men or cavemen). They received help in the form of birds (UFO's) that flew into the area from the large outside territory. These birds still fly over that lake watching and helping and he is one of them, but most of his time is spent in the outer reaches. He has a battalion of higher beings under him who help him work with and help those on that lake who are in his charge. He gives most of his orders and duties to others to implement but it is all under his direction.

He knew that he had had his last time (last reincarnation) on that "lake" when he continued to rise. Now he is free of the earth plane and the earth's total system and is on "vacation" before starting a new round of duties. He has been promoted and will no longer be in contact with as many on the earth plane, only those who go with him through their bond. There will be one taking over the work he did to help that first "lake" and he will do a good job. This first mouse has other "lakes to explore."
